Entrepreneurship的核心在于“将问题转化为机遇”，无论是内部创业、社会创新还是文化重塑，均需结合愿景驱动、资源整合、动态适应三大要素。成功的创业者既是理想主义者，也是务实的问题解决者，同时需在组织支持与社会需求之间找到平衡点。

Business Risks

Characteristic	How Firm Is Exposed
Limited funding	Limited ability to cover expenses.
Reliance on one product	Revenue will be reduced substantially if there is a large decline in the demand for a single product.
Reliance on one customer	Revenue will decline substantially if the customer no longer purchases the firm's product.
Reliance on one supplier	Potential shortages of supplies if supplier experiences problems.
Reliance on a key employee	Performance will decline if the employee dies, becomes ill, or leaves the firm.
Property losses	Expenses incurred from covering damage to property.
Liability losses	Expenses incurred from covering liability for damage to others or their property.
Employee compensation claims	Expenses incurred from covering compensation claims.

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

Identify the steps a firm should take before deciding to compete in a specific market.

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

A firm should first identify its competitors and determine the existing market segments. Each industry has segments that are categorized by the type of customer or the different levels of perceived quality. Well-managed firms will assess the current competition and anticipate changes in the competitive environment. Once the firm has identified its target market segment and assessed its key rivals, the firm should then develop a competitive advantage. This competitive advantage could be product differentiation based on (a) lower costs of production, (b) lower prices, or (c) better quality.

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

What are the pros and cons of entrepreneurship? Do you think you have the skills required, including risk tolerance, to be an entrepreneur?

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

The pros of entrepreneurship include working for yourself, having control over decision making, and the prospect of making money. The cons include the risk that must be taken and the human capital one must put into the business to be a good entrepreneur.

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

What is a business plan? Why should a business plan be very clear and precise? Explain what is included in a business plan.

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

A business plan is a detailed description of the proposed business, including a description of the business, the resources needed for production, the marketing needed to sell the product, and the financing of the business.

A business plan should be very clear and precise in order to convince others that the business will be profitable. If investors do not believe in the business plan, they will be unwilling to invest funds in the business, and creditors will not provide loans.

Review & Critical Thinking Questions

All of the following are included in a business plan:

- a. An assessment of the business environment, including the economic, industry, and global environment.
- b. A management plan to establish the proposed organizational structure, production, and human resources of the firm.
- c. A marketing plan focuses on the target market, as well as product characteristics, pricing, distribution, and promotion.
- d. A financial plan to illustrate the feasibility of the proposed business and to propose how the firm will be financed.
